

Letter of Reference: Jeffrey Hansen

Copenhagen, Monday 10 December 2018

Jeffrey Hansen has been employed at Innovation Roundtable for an 8-week internship. In this period, I was both his colleague and supervisor, in which I guided his progress as an Innovation Content Creator. His role was to produce reports from presentations, interviews, and data collected at our events, which was eventually sent out to our members which include over 250 leading companies. It was clear that Jeffrey has a keen interest in innovation, which can be seen by the work he produced and was one of the reasons we attempted to prolong his internship with us. Unfortunately, due to governmental regulations, our appeal was rejected.

Prior to leaving the company, Jeffrey produced a respectable amount of content, one of which was highly praised by one of our speakers. Additionally, Jeffrey sought to tackle a big challenge our members have by creating the foundation for a tool to assist middle managers in addressing upper management. Jeffrey briefly joined us again at our Innovation Roundtable Summit as a volunteer and contributed significantly in ensuring the event ran smoothly.

Jeffrey has demonstrated many attributes we highly value at Innovation Roundtable such as an eagerness to learn, creative problem-solving, and well-rounded social skills among his peers. I, along with my colleagues at Innovation Roundtable, wish Jeffrey the best of luck with his future endeavors, and highly recommend him for your organization.
